

Gina Boon

Gina is an accomplished media professional with a career spanning more than 20 years in news and current affairs. As a news presenter at both Nine and Seven, she brought critical stories that resonate with diverse audiences to life.

Beyond presenting, Gina researched and produced news and current affairs stories and documentaries often in high-pressure circumstances and was deeply passionate about impactful storytelling.

Gina has media projects in development with a Golden Globe and BAFTA award winning UK producer/director and five-time Emmy nominee.

Alongside her professional life, Gina spent many years of engagement with various charitable endeavours and organisations for Cerebral Palsy, homelessness, drug addiction, children at risk where she formed a lasting personal connection to the challenges faced by underserved communities.

Gina has witnessed both the resilience of individuals and the impact of limited access to opportunities. In 2006, Gina joined a small group of enthusiastic fundraisers as a founding member of the Bestest Foundation which is dedicated to contributing to meaningful assistance for disadvantaged kids falling between the cracks, helping to amplify voices that often go unheard. Bestest believes that small, consistent acts of care can ripple outward, affecting lives and communities.
